

Admittance Criteria to Top Rated Graduate Universities

Securing an acceptance to any graduate university can be extremely difficult and there are multiple aspects on an application universities take into consideration

- The most common attribute utilized by universities is the GRE
  - GRE test scores have an extremely large correlation with the acceptance rate of high rated universities
  - The correlation increases slightly with the rating
- The GRE is not the only aspect important to admissions, TOEFL score is also considered
  - While there is less of a correlation with acceptance for the TOEFL score, there is still a significant correlation
  - The correlation is significantly higher with higher rated schools
- The statement of purpose written by an applicant makes them stand out beyond their test score
  - However, top rated schools have little correlation between acceptance and a well written statement
  - In fact, the higher rated the school, the less of a correlation
